

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

VIASU: CROBATS

WHEN the great Sobieski, to whose valour, not only Vienna, but the German empire, owed its preservation from the Turkish power, was asked in extremity to make his will, he laugh'd in the face of the bishop, who had been obliged to take the most round-about method to make the proposal. "The misfortune of royalty," said the King, recollecting himself, "is, that we are not obeyed while we are alive : and can it be expected we should be obeyed after we are dead?"

Elective kings have not the power, and the kings of uncultivated northern nations have not the idea, of making provision for heirs, even though they are to sink at once into a private rank.

The kings of England wanted no such monitor : but, either from motives of justice or contrition, or in a mistaken zeal to save their souls by a momentary good deed, we find most of them ready enough to engage in "the last great act of a wise man's life." The utmost of their ability was to dispose of their great treasures among their relations, servants, or ecclesiastics. The Conqueror bequeathed kingdoms ; Henry II. money to monks and nuns ; Henry I.

and III. Edward I. and III. money, jewels, household furniture, and charitable legacies; the unhappy Richard II. in whose reign it seems to have been first allowed by authority of parliament to our kings, their heirs and successors, to make their wills, and have them duly executed *, makes his testament in the spirit of the times, and at the eve of a revolution which he little suspected, while the usurper confesses his sins with all the contrition he had need of. Henry V. expresses all the anxiety of a wealthy country gentleman about his lordships and manors; and his monkish son devotes his testament intirely to found and plan two colleges.

If from ROYAL we turn our eyes to NOBLE testaments, we shall find them conceived in nearly the same sentiments. The care of sepulture, debts, legacies, and charitable foundations, fill up the common outline †. Lady Clare, the foundress of Clarehall, Cambridge, seems to have completed that pious foundation in her life-time, only a legacy of £.40 to it appearing in her will. The gallant Prince of Wales enlarges on his tomb and his bed-furniture, within a month of his lingering death, as much as his brother of Gaunt does on his wardrobe, or the rich Cardinal of England on his plate. Henry Duke of Lancaster and Edward Duke of York founded colleges which have long since given way to dissolution, while those two founded by Henry VI. with those which claim the "venerable Margaret" for their foundress survive and flourish as much as they surpass them in utility, for the "increase of virtue, and dilatation of conning, and stablishment of Christian faith." Richard Earl of Arundel affords a striking picture of human vanity in the troublesome reign of Richard II. and Edward IV's queen a perfect portrait of royal poverty.

† The French bishops, in the sixteenth century, claimed a right to refuse burial to persons dying intestate, or without leaving a legacy to the church; and the relations of the deceased were obliged to make amends for the omission. Saintfoix, Essais Hist. sur Paris, I. 50.

This series of miscellaneous and different wills presents us with many curious particulars. We learn from them more of the manners and private life of our illustrious ancestors, some new facts in their public history, and several new descents in their pedigrees. The prospect of death sets their lives in a new point of light. Such is the force of superstition, however the present age thinks itself above its reach, that the recommendation of the soul to half a dozen saints was set up as a palliative for a thousand crimes. Men left their good works works to their last moments, died in the midst of their sins, with every vicious impression deeply stamp'd on their souls, till purgatory or papal indulgence should wear it out.

The language of these wills is the common language of the times, here attempted to be rendered intelligible by the help of those excellent compendious Glossaries of old French, published by Monf. Borel*, Monf. Laccombe, and Mr. Kelham, and the more extensive Latin one of Du Cange†.

The forms of the bequests are precise and nervous, unincumbered with the trusts and devises of modern times, more advantageous to lawyers than testators. They breathe the spirit of an age when the most important grants and charters were comprised in slips of parchment not six inches square, attested by a croud of witnesses who seldom wrote their names.

The prerogative of the archbishop of Canterbury in testamentary matters extends to the probate of granting administrations, and all causes thereon depending, where the parties deceased were possessed of bona notabilia (that is, effects to the value of five pounds) in different dioceses, within his province, except in the diocese of London, where it is ten pounds by antient composition, and this will account for so many of the wills here printed being extant in the Archiepiscopal Registry at Lambeth.

These and the registers of the different sees, which have hitherto been generally considered as mere records of institution, endowments, or other ecclesiastical matters, have in various instances preserved many curious particulars of our national history. The Black Prince's letter to the Bishop of Worcester, published from his register in Archæol. I. p. 212. may be considered as a Gazette account of the battle of Poitiers. Innumerable wills, of which this small sample is here presented to the curious, deserve to be published*, at least in abstract; as Sir William Dugdale has done†, throughout his Baronage. Le Neve mentions two recorded upon the ~~Clause~~ Rolls‡, where great numbers are preserved.

Abusing the sacred trust of testamentary disposition was one of the aggravated crimes of that egregious plagiarist and libeller Edmund Gurril,

* See one of lady Eliz. Fitz Hugh, 1427, Ant. Rep. N° xxix.

† Sir William Dugdale supposes the will of Clifford implies a recantation of the errors, as he calls them, of Lollardism. He would have formed a judgment more candid, as well as more just, had he said the testator only spoke the general penitential language of wills.

‡ Blomefield's Norfolk, I. p. 677. Mr. Becket the surgeon observed more wills in the Prerogative Office, relating to the county of Lincoln, than any other county. Stukeley's Itin. Cur. I. p. 25.

who overleapt all bounds that opposed the interest of the moment. The present Editor violates no confidence which the revolution of seven centuries has not made the property of the publick. Ambitious to contribute his mite to that spirit of historic investigation that distinguishes the present age, he is conscious of the incompetency of his subject to yield him much beyond the fame of an Antiquary, while he presents his countrymen with a series of wills made by our Sovereigns, or the several collateral branches of the royal families; some taken from the parliamentary registers and public records, and most * of the others transcribed from the archiepiscopal registers at Lambeth under the immediate inspection of the present librarian, by whom the proof-sheets were in part revised, and the whole illustrated with notes and a glossary by other learned friends.

March 27, 1780.

* The will of John of Gaunt, having been deposited at Lincoln, is faithfully copied from the register of his son Bp. Beaufort, who enjoyed that see from 1397 to 1405, when he was translated to Winchester, which he held till 1447.

W I L L I A M T H E C O N Q U E R O R .

THE Conqueror's will consisted only of a distribution of all his wealth among the churches, clergy, and the poor, the precise sums which he bequeathed to each being set down by notaries from his mouth, on his death-bed, where he made a long and pathetic speech about his affairs and successors in his different dominions. He was particularly liberal to the clergy of Mantes, whose churches he had burnt. To his younger son Henry he left 5000 £. of silver; to his eldest son Robert, Normandy*; and to his second son William, the crown of England.

“ Sapiens heros in futurum sibi multisque commoda facere non distulit, omnesque thesauros suos ecclesiis et pauperibus, Deique ministris distribui præcepit. Quantum vero singulis dari voluit callide taxavit, & coram se describi a notariis imperavit. Clero quoque Mandantensi supplex ingentia dona misit, ut inde restaurarentur ecclesie quas combusserat.”

4 WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR.

The stately monuments of the Conqueror and of his queen (destroyed by the Huguenots in the civil wars of France, A. D. 1562) are succeeded by modern altar tombs, which are engraven in Dr. Ducarel's Anglo-Norman Antiquities, plates VI. and VII. where also (at p. 51.) is a particular description of the original monument erected for the Conqueror by his son William Rufus.

THE immature death of WILLIAM RUFUS, A. D. 1000. did not give him time to make any testamentary disposition. His tomb in Winchester cathedral met with the same treatment as his father's in our late civil wars*. It is engraven in Sandford, p. 23. edit. 1677. and in Gale's Antiquities of Winchester.

* Mr. Warton says, that "his tomb was opened by the rebels in the civil wars, who stole from thence the remains of a cloth of gold, a ring set with rubies, said to be worth £. 500. and a small silver chalice." Description of Winchester, p. 90.

HENRY

HENRY THE FIRST.

HENRY I. ordered his natural son Robert * to take £.60,000. out of his treasure in his custody at Falaise, and to distribute gratuities and pay among his servants and soldiers; and directed his body to be carried to Reading, where he had founded an abbey.

“ Roberto filio suo de thesauro quod idem servabat Falaisiæ sexaginta millia libras jussit accipere famulisque suis atque stipendiariis militibus mercedes et donativa erogare. Corpus vero suum Reddingas deferri præcepit ubi cœnobium cc monachorum in honore sanctæ et individuæ Trinitatis condiderat.” Ord. Vit. l. vii. p. 901.

This king died at St. Denys, in the castle and forest of Lions, in Normandy, Dec. 4, 1135; and was buried at Reading abbey, where there are not now the smallest memorials of him.

* Earl of Gloucester, the guardian of the kingdom, and able defender of the title of his sister and nephew against Stephen. He died in November, 1146. See his character admirably drawn by Lord Lyttelton, Vol. II. p. 148, &c.

STEPHEN.

STEPHEN was too much of a soldier of fortune to have it in his power to make any bequests. The kingdom was settled for him the moment the right heir was able to assert his claim. He died at Dover, Oct. 25, 1154. His own and his queen's bodies * were torn out of their graves at Feversham abbey, at the dissolution, for the sake of the lead of their coffins.

* Weever and Stow, the latter as quoted by Lewis, speak only of the king's body. Lewis, however, speaks of it as probable, that the bodies of the queen and Eustace their son shared the same fate. Eustace died at St. Edmondsbury, Aug. 10, 1152. Maud, Stephen's queen, May 3, 1151. Weever.

RICHARD THE FIRST.

WHEN Richard I. was pronounced past recovery of his wound, 1199, he bequeathed to his brother John his kingdom of England, and all his other territories, and made all present take the oath of allegiance to him. He ordered that his castles should be delivered to him, and three parts of his treasure: and all his jewels he devised to his nephew * Otho emperor of Germany, and directed that the remaining fourth of his treasures should be distributed among his servants and the poor. He directed that his brains, his blood, and his entrails, should be buried at Charrou [Chaltiz], his heart at Rouen, and his body at Font Evraud, at the feet of his father.

“ Cum autem rex de vita desperaret, divisit Johanni fratri suo regnum Angliæ et omnes alias terras suas; et fecit fieri prædicto Johanni fidelitates ab illis qui aderant; et præcepit ut traderentur ei castella sua et tres partes thesauri sui, et omnia baubella sua divisit Othoni nepoti suo regi Alemannorum, et quartam partem thesauri sui, præcepit servientibus suis et pauperibus distribui. Deinde præcepit rex ut cerebrum et fanguis et viscera sua sepelirentur apud Charrou, et cor suum apud Rothomagum, et corpus suum apud Fontem Ebraudi ad pedes patris sui.”

Hoveden, Annal. p. 449, 450. 1596.

This king died at Gizors, April 6, 1199. His body was buried at Font Evraud in Anjou; see his monument in Sandford, p. 64. and in Montfaucon, Mon. de la Monarchie, Franc. II. pl. xv. Also by G. Vertue, in Rapin's History of England. His heart was buried at Rouen; his monument, and that of his second wife Elizabeth, is engraven in Montfaucon, ubi supra, and copied in Dr. Ducarel's Anglo-Norman Antiquities, pl. 2. as is also the effigies of Berengera his wife, taken from her tomb in the abbey of L'Espen near Mons, where she is interred.

KING JOHN.

EGO J. Dei gratia rex Anglie, dominus Hibernie, dux Norm' et Aquit', Com' Andegav', gravi infirmitate preventus, nec sufficiens ad tempus infirmitatis mee currere per singula, ut testamentum meum de singulis rebus meis condam; ordinationem et dispositionem testamenti mei fidei et dispositioni legitime committo fidelium meorum subscriptorum, sine quorum consilio etiam in bono statu constitutus nullatenus impresentia eorum ordinarem: ut quod ipsi fideliter ordinaverint et disposuerint de rebus meis, tam in satisfactione facienda Deo et sancte ecclesie de dampnis et injuriis eis illatis, quam in succursu faciundo terre Jerosolimitane, et sustentatione prestanda filiis meis pro hereditate sua perquirenda et defendenda, et in remuneratione facienda illis qui fideliter nobis servierunt, et in distributione facienda pauperibus et domibus religiosis pro salute anime mee, ratum sit et firmum. Peto etiam, ut qui consilium et juvamen eis fecerit ad testamentum meum ordinandum, gratiam Dei percipiat et favorem. Qui autem ordinationem et dispositionem suam infregerit, maledictionem et indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beate Marie, et omnium sanctorum incurrat. Imprimis igitur volo, quod corpus meum sepeliatur in ecclesia Sancte Marie et Sancti Wulstani de Wigorn.

* Edward was at Acres 1271, the fifty-sixth and last year of his father's reign. Rapin III. 488, 489.

Whether the military transactions, and the revenge this great Prince was preparing to execute on the Scotch, when death overtook him at Burgh on Sands, in Cumberland, July 7, 1307, prevented him from making any testamentary disposition after he came to the crown; no other will of his has yet come to light. He was buried at the head of his father in Westminster-abbey. See his Monument in Sandford, p. 136. and by G. Vertue in Rapin's History of England, vol. I.

See also Sir Joseph Ayloffé's account of his body, as it appeared on opening his tomb in the year 1774. Archæologia, vol. IV. p. 376.

It is more easy to account for the want of a will of his unhappy son and successor EDWARD THE SECOND, who was murdered on the 25th of January, 1326, and buried in the monastery (now the cathedral) of St. Peter at Gloucester. See his monument in Sandford, p. 151. and by G. Vertue in Rapin's History of England, vol. I.

* This is the chapel called by Mr. Somner "The Lady Undercroft," in the middle of which Becket was buried. Neither he nor Mr. Gosling, had they seen this will, would have entertained any doubt about the place of that prelate's interment. (Canterbury Walk, p. 220. 2d edit.) The Black Prince does not mean to be buried in the same chapel with the saint; that would have been too great an intrusion. He only means to be laid in the same church, directly before the altar, from which his tomb was to be ten feet distant. He founded a chantry in this chapel, 1363, with licence of his father, king Edward III. and made a very considerable alteration in the Gothic taste, with ribs curiously moulded, and having carved ornaments at their interfections, among which one has his arms. This was called the Black Prince's Chapel. The endowment of the chantry was

^g This epitaph is given in Sandford and in Dart's Canterbury, with some little variations, and some incorrectness. It is written on the edge of the brass table, in double lines, the lines of each couplet following one another. There is added an epitaph in prose, setting forth the Prince's titles, the day of his death, &c.

Tiel come tu es, je autiel fu ; tu seras tiel come je fu ;
 De la mort ne pensay je mie, tant come javoy la vie.
 En terre avoy grand richesse, dont je y fys grand nobleffe, Terre, mesons, et grand treshor, draps, chivalx, argent, et or,
 Mes ore fu je povres et cheitifs, profond en la terre gys.
 Ma grand beaute est tout alee, ma char est tout gastee.
 Moult est étroite ma meson. En moy na si verite non.

^s At the altar where St. Thomas lies, at the altar where the crown of his skull which was cut off at his death was preserved, and at the altar where was kept the piece of Richard Brito's sword, which was broken off by the violence of his blow against the archbishop's head and the pavement. See Fitz Stephen's account of his death in Sparke's Hist. Anglic. Script. p. 87. Gervaise inter X. Script. p. 1416. The first was called altare tumbæ B. Thomæ martyris (Somner p. 98. Battel. p. 28.) The second was probably in that part of the cathedral called Becket's Crown. (Ib. p. 94. Gostl. p. 124.) The third was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and commonly called the altar of the martyrdom of St. Thomas. Erasmus says it was of wood, and a very small one, and that there was laid upon it the point of the sword which cut off the crown of the archbishop's head, and was stirred about in his brain. At this altar he breathed his last invocations on the Blessed Virgin. Batteley, p. 27, says, Roger who was chosen abbot of St. Austlin's 1176, and carried with him from it a piece of the skull, and good part of the blood and brains of St. Thomas, was keeper of this altar; but Thorn (int. X. Script. p. 1819) says, he was keeper of the altar ad quod S. Thomas fuit martyrizatus. This was St. Benedict's altar. Fitz Stephen. In the windows of the Library at Trinity College, Oxford, is a figure with a mitre and crozier, and the point of a sword sticking in his forehead, which from this circumstance the late Mr. Huddesford supposed to represent Becket.

This Henry, surnamed Grismond, from the place of his birth, being Grismond-castle, or Castrum de Grosso Monte, in Monmouthshire, and called also Tort-Col, or Wry Neck, was the only son of Henry earl of Lancaster, the second son of king Henry the Third. He was created earl of Derby in his father's life, 11 E. III. earl of Lincoln, 23 E. III. and duke of Lancaster, 25 E. III. and married Isabel, daughter of Henry lord Beaumont, by whom he had issue two daughters, of whom Blanche, the younger, being married to John of Gaunt, brought him the estate and title of Lancaster. Henry died at Leicester of the plague, 35 Edw. III. 1360, and was buried in the collegiate church of Our Lady, at Leicester, where Leland^c saw his monument, on the S. side of the altar, and at his head that of his wife. But these, with the church itself, were completely demolished at the dissolution; but the hospital of the same foundation still subsists in part. See his seal in Sandford, p. 102.

John Hastryngs, earl of Pembroke, was son of Laurence, born 21 E. III. and having obtained a divorce from Margaret, daughter of E. III. in 42 E. III. married Anne daughter and heir of Sir Walter Manney, founder of the Charterhouse, which occasions the earl's bequests to that house. He was an active commander in the French wars, being made lieutenant of Aquitaine; but in attempting

attempting to relieve Rochelle by sea, his fleet was burnt by the Spaniards, and himself carried prisoner into Spain, where he suffered four years rigorous confinement. After his release he went to Paris, where he soon fell sick, as supposed, of poison, and died on the road to Calais, April 16, 50 E. III. He was buried first in the choir of the Friars Preachers at Hereford, but removed to the Grey-friars, near Newgate, London. Dugd. Bar. I. 576, 577.

^c This expression (which at first view seems irreconcilable with what Dugdale, I. 320. and Vincent, p. 26, say, that this earl's mother was Eleanor daughter of Henry Plantagenet earl of Lancaster) is satisfactorily cleared up by the following observations of a judicious friend :

"It is yet a custom in the North for parents, whose children intermarry to call brothers and sisters; Richard earl of Arundel, upon this principle, calling Elizabeth lady Mowbray his sister, of course Margaret dutchess of Norfolk would be his mother, and he might have the vanity to call her so, as being a woman of high rank and fortune. ^a The capital messuage called the Cold harbor, in the parish of All Saints, ad sænum, in Dowgate-ward, being purchased by Sir John Poulteney, who was four times mayor, and dwelt in it, took the name of Poulteney's Inn. He gave the whole, with the wharf adjoining, to Humphrey de Bohun earl of Hereford and Essex, and died 1349. It is not improbable our earl of Arundel had this house in right of his wife, neice to this Humphrey. In 1397, 21 R. II. the year after his execution, John Holland earl of Huntingdon was lodged there, and Richard his brother dined with him. It was then counted a right fair and stately house. In the next year Edmund earl of Cambridge was there lodged; and it retained the name of Poulteney's Inn, 26 H. VI. It belonged, 1472, to Henry Holland duke of Exeter. Richard III. granted it to the Heralds 1485, and in the reign of Henry VIII. the bishop of Durham's house being taken into the king's hands, bp. Tonsal lodged here, since which it came to the earls of Shrewsbury, of whom the last in Stowe's time took it down, and built on the scite a number of small tenements let out for great rents. Register Arundell pars prima, fol. 183. b. 184. a. b. 185. a. b. 186. a. b. in the archiepiscopal registry at Lambeth.

Richard Fitz Alan, fourth earl of Arundel, son of Richard the third earl, and Eleanor his second wife, daughter of Henry earl of Lancaster, served king Richard II. in his different wars, and as admiral of his fleet. He was in the commission that sentenced Michael de la Pole the king's favourite, and joined the lords against the duke of Ireland. The king attempted to surprize him in his castle at Ryegate, but but soon after restored him to his commands by sea and land. 12 R. II. he purchased a licence to marry for his second wife Philippa daughter of Edmund Mortimer earl of March, and widow of John Hastings earl of Pembroke. The same year he was in parliament divested of all his employments, and eight years after received sentence of death, and was beheaded in Cheapside, the king himself being a spectator; Thomas Mowbray earl Marshal, who had married his daughter, being the executioner that bound up his eyes, and the earl of Kent his nephew guarding him. He was buried in the Austin Friars church in London. By his first wife Elizabeth^a, daughter of William de Bohun earl of Northampton, he had three sons^a; Thomas his successor, Richard and William who died young; and four daughters; Elizabeth first married to William de Montacute eldest son to William earl of Salisbury; secondly, to Thomas lord Mowbray earl Marshal and of Nottingham; thirdly, to Sir Gerard Uflete knt. and fourthly to Sir Robert Gouffill knt^b. Joane wife of William de Beauchamp lord Bergavenny. Margaret wife of Sir Rowland Lenthal, knt. and Alice married to John Charleton Lord Powis. Dugd. Bar. I. 320.

* The duke gave up his claim to the crown of Castile in consideration of ten thousand pounds (libre) yearly pension to him, and the same to his dutchefs Constance (Walsingham, p. 342) and 200,000 nobles in hand. Sandford, p. 252. Rapin (IV. 420) says, the king of Castile bound himself to pay down 600,000 livres, with a yearly pension of 40,000 during the lives of the duke and dutchefs. Carte (II. 575) says, the duke of Lancaster was to be paid 200,000 crowns towards the charges of his expedition, and to receive 100,000 florens annually, and his wife Constance as much, for their respective lives. Of the contemporary historians quoted by the latter, Walsingham says nothing of the money in-hand, but that the duke had from the king summam multam minis. The life of Richard II. printed by Hearne leaves a blank for the sum. Froissart III. c. 138. p. 328. says, that on the marriage of the duke's eldest daughter with the king's son, the king gave him much land and territory in Castile, and a great number of florins, about 200,000 nobles. One of the duke's followers told Knighton that the second payment was sent by the king of Spain in chests of gold, on forty-seven mules. He did not enquire about the first; but adds, that hostages were given for an annual payment of 16000 marks for the duke's life, and 12000 per annum to the dutchefs if she survived. p. 2677. The Abrégé Chron. de l'Hist. d'Espagne, p. 548. says, the king paid the expenses of the war, and a considerable pension to the dutchefs. Such is the variation of historians, or the value of money in different nations. The instrument in Rymer, VII. 603. is only an order from the king to receive the sixty hostages for the payment. Dated Westminster, 26 Aug. 1388.

Regist. Hen. Beaufort. fol. 13. b. to fol. 18. a. inclus.
In the episcopal registry at Lincoln.

Edward III. by his wife Philippa, had issue this JOHN their fourth son, born at Gaunt [Ghent] 1340. In two years after his birth he was created earl of Richmond, and in 1361 duke of Lancaster. In 1359 he married Blanch younger daughter and coheir of Henry duke of Lancaster, who dying ten years after [1369] dutchess of Lancaster, was buried in St. Paul's cathedral; and in her right her husband obtained the three earldoms of Derby, Lincoln, and Leicefter. Peter the Cruel, King of Castile and Leon (whom Edward Prince of Wales had invested in his kingdoms) left at his death, 1367, two daughters, who, to avoid the usurper their uncle, had taken refuge in Gascoigne. The duke caused them to be brought to Bourdeaux, deaux, and there married Constance the elder 1372^t, assumed the title of King of Castile and Leon, and supported his claim by force of arms, but without success. On the death of the Prince of Wales, he was appointed Regent of the kingdom, in the declining age ~~of his~~ father, and during the minority of his nephew Richard II. by whom he was created duke of Aquitaine in 1389; and six years after he set up in parliament his claim to the succession of the crown of England^a, which his son (afterwards Henry IV.) obtained, and so brought the great duchy of Lancaster to the crown. He took to his third wife Catharine daughter of Sir Payne Roet, and widow of Sir Otes Swynford, who had been his mistress in the life of Constance, and who survived him four years, and dying 1403, was buried in Lincoln Minster, where her monument, robbed of its brasses, remains on the West side of the altar, while those of his former wives were destroyed at the dissolution and by the fire of London. The duke departed this life at the bishop of Ely's palace in Holborn, about the Feast of the Purification of our Lady, A. D. 1399, and was buried with his first wife in St. Paul's cathedral. See their monument in Sandford, p. 256.

^a She died 1394, and was buried in the collegiate church at Leicester, where Leland saw her monument of marble before the high altar, with her image of brass like a queen on it. It. I. 17.

^b Sandford, p. 252.

By

By his first wife Blanch he had issue,

1. Henry, duke of Hereford and Lancaster, and earl of Derby, afterwards king of England.

2. Philippa, married to John I. king of Portugal 1386, died 1415; buried with her husband at the abbey of Batalha, where Mr. Twisse (Travels, p. 43.) describes the monument with their effigies cumbent².

3. Elizabeth, married first to John Holland earl of Exeter, beheaded at Cirencester 1 H. IV. and secondly, to Sir John Cornwall lord Fanhop: she died 142 $\frac{1}{2}$, and was buried at Burford in Shropshire. Her portrait, and that of her second husband were in a window at Ampthill church, engraved by Sandford, p. 259.

By Constance he had one only daughter Catherine, married to Henry prince of Asturias, son and heir to Henry count of Trastamare, base brother and successor to Peter king of Castile and Leon, to whose kingdom her husband succeeded by the name of Henry III. 1390, and their descendants were kings of Spain till Charles II. who died 1700.

By Catharine Swynford he had, 1. John Beaufort, created earl of Somerset 20 R. II. and next year marquis of Dorset; he married Margaret Holland daughter of Thomas earl of Kent; and dying 1410, was buried at Canterbury, where in St. Michael's chapel in the South transept is a most beautiful monument for him, his lady, and her second husband

² After seven kings of their issue had governed Portugal, it was invaded by Philip King of Spain 1580, and united to that crown till 1640.

Thomas duke of Clarence. 2. Henry, cardinal of St. Eusebius, bishop of Lincoln 1398, and of Winchester from 1404 to 1447, where he was buried behind the high altar, having been twice chancellor of England, and once at Jerusalem. 3. Thomas Beaufort duke of Exeter, admiral of England, earl of Dorset; he married Mary daughter of Sir Thomas Nevil, died at East Greenwich 1426, and was buried at St Edmundsbury, where his corps was discovered 1772. (See Phil. Transf. Vol. LXII. art. 33. and Archaeol. vol. III. p. 311.) 4. Joan Beaufort married first to Robert Ferrers, secondly to Ralph Nevill first earl of Westmorland, by whom she was grandmother to the famous Earl of Warwick the kingmaker, and dying 1440, was buried at Lincoln by her mother, where her brassless monument still remains.

Eleanor was the eldest daughter of Humphrey de Bohun earl of Hereford, Essex, and Northampton, and constable of England. She was married to Thomas of Woodstock, seventh son of Edward III. and duke of Gloucester. After his unfortunate exit, she lived retired in his castle of Pleffy in Essex; Richard II. having given her all her own wearing apparel, and two chariots, with some other small articles, which had been seized by the mayor of London, and valued at 19l. 4s. 4d. (Pat. 21 R. II. p. 2. m. 10.) Having lived to see that king deposed, she died October 3, 1399, and was buried agreeable to her will in St. Edward's chapel at Westminster, where her portrait in brass in a close gown and mantle remains entire, by the side of her husband's slab long since robbed of its brass. See it engraved in Sandford, p. 232. By the duke of Gloucester she had one son Humphrey, of whom see p. 180, and four daughters; 1. Anne, married to Thomas earl of Stafford, and after his death, 14 R. II. the marriage not having been consummated, to his brother Edmund, slain at the battle of Shrewsbury, Edmund, Duke of York, was the fifth son of King Edward the Third, born at Langley in Hertfordshire, 1341, 15 E. III. created earl of Cambridge 36 E. III. distinguished himself with his brother John of Gaunt against the Castilians, after which he was created the first duke of York since the time of R. I. Having in vain opposed the designs of his nephew Henry on the crown, and seen England's scepter in three different hands, he died at Langley August 1, 1402. His monument (in the chancel of the Friars Preachers there, now the parish church) is engraved by Gaywood in Sandford's Genealogical Hist. p. 359. He married first, 1372, Isabel daughter of Pedro king of Castile (his brother John of Gaunt having married her sister Constance), and by her left issue Edward earl of Rutland, afterwards duke of York, killed at the battle of Agincourt;

Agincourt; 2. Richard de Coningsburgh duke of York, father of Edward, slain at the battle of Wakefield, 1460.
3. Constance married to Thomas Despenfer earl of Gloucester, and Richard Beauchamp earl of Warwick; she died 1394, and was buried at Langley; secondly, Joan, daughter of Thomas earl of Kent, who surviving him was remarried to William lord Willoughby of Eresby, but died without issue 12 H. ^b Son of Edmund de Langley before-mentioned. He was reftored to his hereditary dignity of Duke of York, in parliament, 7 H. IV. 1405, and fmothered to death in the crowd at the battle of Agincourt. (Dugd. II. 156, 157).

^c Thomas Langley, who had been dean of York and lord chancellor, advanced to the fee of Durham 1406, and cardinal 1411; died 1437, buried in his cathedral. Godwin.

^d Richard lord Grey of Codnor, was much employed by H. IV. and died 5 H. V. buried at Aylesford in Kent. Dugd. Bar. I. 711.

^e Sir John Tiptoft was treafurer of the houfhold, 9 H. IV. president of the exchequer, and treafurer of Normandy, and chief fteward of the king's lordfhips and caftles in Wales, and the marches; lord Tiptoft and Powis; died 21 H. VI. (Dugd. II. 40). Where buried does not appear, but his wife Joyce, daughter and coheir to Edward Charlton lord Powis, has a monument in Enfield church.

This will is printed by Weever in his Funeral Monuments, p. 208. from a copy given him by Sir Simon d'Ewes, examined with the original under the privy seal.

Henry IV, only son of John of Gaunt, was born at Bolingbroke in Lincolnshire, 1366, created earl of Derby 9 R. II. earl of Hereford and Northampton in right of his first wife, created duke of Hereford 1397, 21 R. II. landed July 1399, at Ravenspur to claim the crown of England, which was set on his head at Westminster October that year by Thomas Arundel archbishop of Canterbury. The greatest part of his reign was a series of rebellion, war, and bloodshed, which he weakly hoped to expiate by a crusade, but died of an apoplexy in the midst of his preparations in the Jerusalem Chamber, in the abbot's house at Westminster, March 20, 1412, having reigned thirteen years and a half. He was buried at Canterbury, where his monument, with the figures of himself and second wife, in alabaster, remains opposite to that of the Black Prince. (See it in Sandford, p. 274. and Dart's Ant. of Canterbury, p. 85.).

Henry married Mary, younger daughter and coheir to Humphrey de Bohun, earl of Hereford, Essex, and Northampton, and sister to Eleanor duchess of Gloucester before-mentioned; she died 1394, five years before her husband came to the crown, and was buried in the new college at Leicester^f, where Leland thus de-

 "Darby lay buried in it, and they make her, I wot not how, wife of John of Gaunt, or Henry IV. Indeed Henry IV. while John of Gaunt lived, was called erle of Darby." By her he had 1. Henry, afterwards king of England; 2. Thomas duke of Clarence, slain in battle at Bauge in France 1412, buried in St. Michael's chapel in the S. transept at Canterbury, as before observed, p. 175.
 3. John duke of Bedford regent of France, under H. VI.
 died 1435, buried in the cathedral at Rouen. 4. Humphrey duke of Gloucester died suddenly at St. Edmund's Bury, not without suspicion of being strangled, 1446; buried at St. Alban's, where his monument still remains, and his corps was found entire about fifty years ago.
 5. Blanch, married 1402 to Lewis, afterwards duke of Bavaria. 2dly, to king of Arragon. 3dly, to the duke of Bar. 6. Philippa, married to John king of Denmark.

Henry's second wife was Joan de Navarre, daughter of Charles II. king of Navarre, grandson of John king of France, widow of John earl of Montfort duke of Bretagne, whom he married 1403, at Winchester; she survived him many years; and dying July 10, 1437, at Havering Bower, was buried with him at Canterbury.

John Beaufort, eldest son of John of Gaunt by his last wife Catherine Swinford, was legitimated and created earl of Somerset 20 R. II. and next year marquis of Somerset and Dorset; but the title of marquis being obnoxious, as before observed, he gave it up 1 H. IV. and was appointed chamberlain of England, and captain of Calais. The earl died April 21, 1410, and was buried in St. Michael's chapel in the S. transept of Canterbury cathedral, where his countess erected to him, her second husband, and herself, a beautiful monument, with their three effigies in alabaster engraved in Sandford, p. 310; Dart, p. 68. He married Margaret third daughter of Thomas earl of Kent, who was remarried to Thomas duke of Clarence, second son of Henry IV. and died December 30, 1440. Elizabeth daughter of the Marquis of Juliers was married to John earl of Kent, second son of Edmund of Woodstock earl of Kent, and son of King Edward I. Her husband dying 26 E. III. she was solemnly veiled a nun at Waverley abbey by William Edendon bishop of Winchester; but afterwards, quitting her profession, was privately married without licence to Sir Eustace Dabricecourt knt. in a certain chapel of the mansion house of Robert de Brome, canon of the collegiate church of Wingham in Kent, by Sir John Ireland priest, on Michaelmas day 1360, 34 E. III. For this the archbishop of Canterbury enjoined them the following penance, that they should find a priest to celebrate daily service in our Lady's chapel in Wingham church, and another priest to do the same in their own house; that she should repeat certain psalms, &c. daily; and that the said Sir Eustace, the next day after any carnal copulation had between them, should abstain from whatever dish of flesh or fish whereof they most desired to eat, and relieve competently six poor people; and that she should go once a year to visit Becket's shrine, and one a week eat only bread and a mess of pottage, wearing no smock, and especially in the absence of her husband. She died June 6, 1411, 12 H. IV. Dugd. Bar. II. 94, 95. ex Reg. Islip. Sandford 216.

Probatio dicti testamenti coram Hen' Chichele Cant. archiep' ultimo die mensis Novemb' Anno Domini 1415, apud Lambeth.

Register Chichele pars prima, fol. 284. b. 285. a. b. in the archiepiscopal registry at Lambeth.

Edward Plantagenet, son and heir of Edmund de Langley before-mentioned, p. 189, was created earl of Rutland and Cork 13 R. II. Of this dukedom he was deprived by Henry IV. and in revenge conspired against him, but the conspiracy being discovered by his father, he made his peace. He succeeded his father as duke of York and lord of Tyndale. He founded at Fotheringay a magnificent college^f, for which he was obliged to mortgage great part of his estate. He left England Aug. 13, 1414; was at the siege of Harfleur Aug. 16, and next day made his will. Having desired to have the lead at the battle of Agincourt, October 25, he lost his life in the heat and crowd, being a very fat man, and smothered to death. His body was brought to England, and buried in the choir of his collegiate church under a marble slab, with his figure in brass. After the dissolution, the choir being pulled down by the duke of Northumberland, to whom Edward VI. had granted it, the stone was taken up, and the corps exposed to view. Queen Elizabeth ordered it to be re-interred in the church, with the grave-stone over it, and a monument of free-stone still remaining was erected for him on the South side of the altar, with his arms, name, and date of his death. He married Philippa daughter of John lord Mohun, who was re-married to Robert Fitzwalter, and dying 10 H. IV. was buried in St. Nicholas's chapel at Westminster, where her monument remains, with her arms impaled by Fitz Walter, &c. Sandford, p. 382. Her will follows.

Thomas

Thomas of Lancaster, second son of Henry IV. was created earl of Albemarle and duke of Clarence 1412, constable and lieutenant-general of the army in France and Normandy, lost his life on Easter-eve 1421, by incautiously encountering the French and Scots at Baugé, where he was borne down by a Scots lance, and with him fell several gallant officers, and 2000 private soldiers, besides many of both ranks made prisoners. His corps was brought over and buried at Canterbury in St. Michael's chapel in the South transept; but as his will directs that it be laid at the feet of his father, we must suppose the tomb whereon his image lies at Canterbury, was, with respect to him, only an honorary cenotaph. See it in Sandford, p. 310. and Dart. He married Margaret Holland widow of John Beaufort earl of Somersset, whose eldest son Henry he seems to have adopted, having no legitimate children of his own, Dugd. Bar. II. 196. Sandford, p. 309.

Voluntas metuendissimi domini nostri regis intimanda feofatis suis in c'tis dominiis hereditatis Lancastr'.

For a transcript of this will (from the original in the Chapter-house at Westminster) I am indebted to my worthy friend Abraham Farley, esq. deputy chamberlain of the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer.

Henry V. the Conqueror of France, was born 1388; and, after a short but glorious reign of 9 years, 5 months, and 14 days, died in the 34th year of his age of a fever and flux, at Bois de Vincennes in France, Aug. 29, 1422; and was buried in the Confessor's chapel at Westminster, in a little chapel, enlarged and beautified by Henry VII. and now kept lockt, where his monument and effigy, a headless defaced trunk of oak, remains. See Sandford, 289, 290.

See in Rymer, X. 506, a writ from Henry VI. to make good the payment of the legacy of £.200. to the clerks of Henry V's chapel, out of the lands and castles in the hands of the archbishop, &c. to be by them made over to the other executors, Walker Lord Hungerford, William Porter, Robert Babthorp, and John Leventhorp. Dated at Westm. May 12, 1432. 10 Henry VI. Rot. Parl. IV. p. 393. A writ 3 Henry VI. 1425. in Rymer, X. 346. (transcribed in the Appendix to this volume, p. 407.) specifies vestments left by Henry V. to nine churches in France, which do not appear here.

KATHERINE, QUEEN OF HENRY V.

THIS Princess, youngest daughter of Charles VI. king of France, born Oct. 27, 1400, was married June 3, 1420, to Henry V. by whom she had one son, afterwards king Henry VI. In 1428, she took to her second husband Owen Tudor, a Welsh gentleman of little fortune, though of illustrious birth, by whom she had three sons: 1. Edmund, created earl of Richmond, married to Margaret daughter of John Beaufort duke of Somerset, by whom he had king Henry VII. and dying 1456, was buried at St. David's, where his monument remains in the middle of the choir. 2. Jasper, created by H. VI. earl of Pembroke, which title he was twice deprived of by E. IV. but restored by Henry VII. and also created duke of Bedford. He married Catherine Rivers, and died 11 H. VII. and was buried in Keynsham abbey, Oxfordshire; his natural daughter Helen was mother of bishop Gardener. 3. Owen, a monk at Westminster.

She died at Bermondsea Jan. 2, 1437, and was buried at Westminster by her first husband. Her corps, being taken up when her grandson Henry VII. laid the foundation of his new chapel, remained above ground till it was pulled to pieces by the spectators and Westminster scholars; and what remains, being some masses of flesh dried as if tanned, is kept in a box within her husband's chapel.

It

It being notified to king Henry VI, in parliament, that his mother had made him executor of her will; the king appointed Robert Rolleston clerk, keeper of the great wardrobe, John Merston and Richard Alrede esquires, to execute the said queen's will, under the direction of Henry Beaufort bishop of Winchester, the duke of Gloucester, and the bishop of Lincoln, or any two of them, to whom they should account. The original will is not now to be found; but the commission for executing it is as follows:

Thomas Beaufort, third son of John of Gaunt and Catherine Swinford, was created earl of Perch in Normandy, and made captain of Calais, and admiral of England, Aquitaine, and Ireland, 10 H. IV. chancellor of England 11 H. IV. earl of Dorset 13 H. IV. lieutenant of Aquitain 1 H. V. one of the ambassadors to treat of the marriage of that prince with Catherine of France, 2 H. V. governor of Harfleur, duke of Exeter for life, and knight of the garter, 4 H. V. He was taken prisoner in the battle wherein the duke of Clarence lost his life, 9 H. V. but next year defeated the earl of Armagnac before Melun. Besides several other gallant exploits, he had the leading of the rearward at the battle of Agincourt, and was appointed guardian of Henry VI. during his minority. He married Margaret daughter of Sir Thomas Neville of Hornby, knt. by whom he had no children; and died at his manor of Greenwich in Kent, Dec. 29, 1426, leaving his nephew John earl of Somersset his heir. Vincent on Brooke, 104. Dugd. II. 125.

He

He was buried, agreeably to his directions, in the abbey church of St. Edmundsbury; in the ruins of which, some labourers digging for stone in the winter of the year 1772, discovered a body enclosed in lead, and preserved in pickle. After it was opened, Mr. Cullum, an eminent surgeon in that town, examined it as minutely as circumstances would permit, and his account of it was transmitted to the Royal Society (Phil. Transf. LXII. art. 33). He is possess of the right hand and the mask of cere-cloth taken from the face, whose features were remarkably fair. This body, being presumed to be that of the duke of Exeter, was interred in a wooden shell seven feet deep, at the foot of the north pillar of the centre tower, where an epitaph was intended to be affixt over it by Dr. Symonds, Professor of Modern History at Cambridge.

After the probabilities that have been urged by the learned in support of their assignment of this body to the noble testator, it may seem presumption to differ from them. But the duke's own direction in his will (which they had not before them) appears to be decisive evidence that his body could not have been found on the South side, as represented in Mr. King's plan, Archæol. III. pl. 15. p. 313. All conclusions from likenesses of features supposed to be retained in the mask must fall to the ground on a view of the mask, which by its thickness exhibits the eyes and nose only en creux. Much of the dark hair of the forehead was torn off with it, and the haste of the workmen destroyed the lower part. No other body was found with this as might have been expected.

John Mowbray, born 1389, was restored 3 H. VI. to the title of duke of Norfolk, which had been forfeited by his brother Thomas's rebellion against Henry IV. He succeeded his brother 1406, 8 H. IV. being then 17 years of age; and though prevented from sharing in the victory at Agincourt by illness, yet continuing at the siege of Harfleur, he performed several important services in France. He married Catherine daughter of Ralph Nevil earl of Westmorland (remarried to Thomas Strangeways esq. John viscount Beaumont, and Sir John Widvile knt. brother to Anthony earl Rivers) and died October 19, 11 H. VI. 1432, leaving issue John, afterwards Duke of Norfolk. Dugdale^e dates his will May 20, 7 H. VI. which is four years prior to this.

Probatio dicti testamenti coram Henrico Chichele Cant. archiep'o apud Lambeth vii die mensis Octobr' Anno Domini M^o cccc. xl. primo.

Registr. Chichele pars prima, fol. 475. a. b. 476. a. in the archiepiscopal registry at Lambeth.

John of Lancaster, third son of H. IV. was, by his father, constituted constable of England, a. r. 4. by his brother H. V. a. r. 2. created earl of Kendal and duke of Bedford Bedford for life, which honours were confirmed to him by his nephew H. VI. a. r. 11. for ever. Henry V. appointed him protector and lieutenant of the kingdom of England, during his absence in France 1415; and Henry VI. made him Regent of France 1425. After winning the battle of Verneuil he crowned his nephew king of France at Paris, Sept. 7, 1432, and not long after died there Sept 14, 1435. He was buried in the cathedral at Rouen, where his monument was defaced by the Hugonots in 1462; but a brass plate with his epitaph under his arms (torn away) between two ostrich feathers still remains affixt to a pillar. Lewis XI. when solicited to deface the monument of this illustrious hero, magnanimously refused.

He married, 1. 1423, Anne, daughter of John duke of Burgundy, who died in child-bed and her child with her 1432, and was buried in the Celestines' church at Paris, where her epitaph remains, and a noble tomb of black marble. 2. Jacqueline daughter of the earl of Luxemburgh, by whom he had no issue, and who remarried Sir Richard Woodvile, afterwards earl Rivers, by whom she had Anthony his successor, Elizabeth afterwards wife of Edward IV. and other children. She died 1472. Dugd. Bar. II. 200. Sandf. 312.

Probatio dicti testamenti coram Johanne (Stafford) Cant. archiep. apud Lambeth, 16 die Feb. A. D. 1447.

Regist. Stafford and Kemp. fol. 160. a. In the archiepiscopal registry at Lambeth.

John (second son of John Holland earl of Huntingdon and duke of Exeter, beheaded and buried at Pleshey, 1 H. IV.) was restored to his estate 4 H. V. and was in several expeditions in France both in that and the succeeding reign, having been taken prisoner when the duke of Clarence was slain. He was constituted lord high admiral of England, Ireland, and Aquitain, October 21, 14 H. VI. and next year constable of the Tower. He was created duke of Exeter 21 H. VI. with this special privilege, that he and his heirs male should have the seat in all parliaments and councils next to the duke of York and his heirs male. He died August 5, 26 H. VI. and was buried on the North side of the chancel of St. Catherine's church by the Tower, where his monument with the figures of himself and his first wife remain much defaced.

He married first, Anne daughter of Edmund earl of Stafford, by whom he had one son Henry, who came to a violent end at sea 13 E. IV. and a daughter Anne married first, to John lord Nevile, son and heir to Ralph 2d earl of Westmorland, by whom having no issue, she married his uncle Sir John Nevile knight, and by him she had Ralph third earl of Westmorland. His second wife was Anne daughter of John Mountague earl of Salisbury, who survived him, and died 1457.

Dugdale has given an abstract of the duke's will and that of his second wife, Bar. II. 81.

Item, that the said grounds be so taken, that the first stone lye in the middle of the high altare, which altare shall conteyne in length 12 fete of affize, and in breadth 5 fete; and that the first stone be not removed, touched, nor stirred, in any wise. Item, the vestry to be set on the North side of the same quier, which shall conteyne in length 50 fete of affize departed into two houses, and in breadth 24 fete, and the wall in height 20 fete, with gable windowes, and side windowes convenient thereto, and the grounde workes to be sette in the height of the grounde of the cloyster. And I will that the edification of my said college of Eton proceed in large forme, cleane and substantially, well replenished with goodly windowes and vaults, laying apart superfluities of too great curious workes of entaile and busy mouldinge. Item, in the said quier on every side 32 stalles and the roode losfe there, I will that they be made in manner and forme like the stalles and roode loft in the chappell of St. Stephen at Westminstr, and of the length of 32 feete, and in breadthe clear 12 feet of affize; and as touching the dimensions of the church of my said college of Eton, I have devised and appointed that the body of the same church between the yles shall conteyn in breadth within the responders 32 fete, and in length from the quier dore to the West dore of the said church 104 feete of affize; and so the said body of the church church shall be longer then is the quier, from the reredosse^a at the high altare unto the quier by 9^b feete, which dimensions is thought to be a right, good, convenient, and due proportion. Item, I have devised and appointed that the yle on the other side of the body of the church, shall conteyn in breadth fro respond to respond 15 feete, and in length 104 feete, according to the said body of the church. Item, in the South side of the body of the church a fair large dore with a porch, and the same for christeninge of children and weddinges. Item, I have devised and appointed six greces^c to be before the high altare, with the grece called Gradus Chori, every of them conteyning in height 6 ynches, and of convenient breadth, every of them as due forme shall require. Item, in the breadth of the church-yarde, from the church dore unto the wall of the church-yarde within the wall of the West ende, which must be take of the streete beside the high waye, six foote of affize. Item, the grounde of the cloyster to be enhaunfed higher then the olde grounde 8 feete ere it come to the pavement, so that it be sett but two foote lower than the paving of the church, which cloyster shall conteyn in length Est and West 200 feete, and in breadth North and South 160 feete of affize. Item, the said cloister shall close unto the church on the North side at the West end, and at the North side at the East end of the church it shall be close unto the college, with a dore into the said college. Henry VI. was only child to Henry V. whose prophetic expressions at his birth he literally fulfilled; being more a monk than a monarch. He succeeded his father at nine months old, 1422, was crowned at Westminster 1429, and in Paris 1431; and before he had reigned 25 years, was dispossessed of all his territories in France. In the year 1452 the rebellion which had been fomenting in England broke out; and Henry, after having been twice deposed and imprisoned in the Tower, was, in 1472, there assassinated in the 51st year of his age, by Richard duke of Gloucester, afterwards king Richard III. He was first buried at Chertsey abbey, and then removed by order of Edward IV. to Windsor, and there interred under a fair monument in St. George's chapel, of which there are at present no remains, whilst that of his competitor and his successor Edward IV. still exists.

He married 1445 Margaret daughter of Renè duke of Anjou, a lady of a spirit as opposite to that o ⁱ Wolvesey-house (or castle, as Bp. Pontifara styles it, 1300.) built by Bp. Blois about 1138, was in Camden's time very spacious, and surrounded with many towers; but being demolisht in the civil wars, Bp. Morley built a handsome house near it, in which he included its chapel. Its ruins are extensive and magnificent. Warton's Description of Winchester, p. 82.

Henry Beaufort, second son of John of Gaunt, studied first at Peterhouse, Cambridge; afterwards at Oxford, of which latter university he was chancellor, 1399; but he completed his studies at Aix le Chapelle. He was prebend of Thame and Bokingham in Lincolnshire diocese, consecrated bishop of Lincoln, 1397, when very young, and seven years after, on the death of Wykeham, translated to Winchester 1404. 4 Hen. VI. He assisted at the council of Constance, 1417, and June 23, 1426, was created Cardinal of St. Eusebius^k, by Pope Martin V. who appointed him his legate, or rather general of his forces against Bohemia^l, which he invaded 1429, with 4000 men, raised by the contributions of the English clergy, and who under him served in France before, on the loss of the battle of Patay. In the decline of life he applied himself sedulously to the care of his diocese, and, among other acts of munificence, founded near St. Cross's hospital, another, for a master, two chaplains, thirty-five poor men, and three nurses; by the name of "the almshouse of noble poverty," whose annual revenue amounted to £. 188. He was four times Chancellor of England, 1404, 1414, 1417, 1424; and in 1417 undertook a voyage to the Holy Land. He died April 11, 1447, Rapin says^m, in despair, that his riches could not exempt him from death. Shakspeare has beautifully improved the thought^m. He lies buried under a noble monument in the presbytery, behind the high altar of his cathedral. His figure in his Cardinal's habit lies on an altartomb, on the verge of which remained of his epitaph, in bishop Godwin's time only these words: Tribularer si nescirem misericordias tuas. He was a prelate of excessive frugality, whereby he amassed so much wealth, that when Henry V. a little before his death, proposed to convert the revenues of the clergy into supplies for his foreign wars, the bishop his uncle lent him £. 20,000. out of his own coffers, on the security of the crown jewels. The influence which his wealth gave him, and a good share of political prudence, soon gave him an ascendancy over his nephew the Duke of Gloucester, Protector in the absence of the Duke of Bedford. The Duke of Gloucester came at last to an open rupture with him, and brought him to a trial, in which he was acquitted, but the Great Seal taken from him. As Henry VI grew up he gained great authority over him, and obtained several pardons, 1437, and 1442. He had just turned the tables on his rival the Duke of Gloucester, who was found dead in his bed at Bury a month before the bishop died. In his youthful days, before he took orders, he had by Alice daughter of Richard Earl of Arundel, sister of the Abp. of Canterbury, a daughter Jane, whom he married to Sir Edward Stradling, Knt. of Glamorganshire. It is remarkable of this bishop that he, as well as his immediate predecessor and successor in this see, held the episcopal dignity longer than any other of our prelates^a, except Thomas Bourchier Abp. of Canterbury.

^a His immediate predecessor Wyckham enjoyed the see of Winchester, from 1365 to 1405; the Cardinal, from 1405 to 1447; and his successor Wainfleet, from 1447 to 1486; making 121 years; and each of them about 40. If we add the time that Beaufort held Lincoln, he will have been a bishop 50 years.

Edward

Edward IV. died of a quartane ague, at his palace of Westminster, on the 9th of April, A. D. 1483, in the forty-second year of his age, and twenty-second of his reign, just on the eve of a war with France; and lies buried at Windsor, in the new chapel he had there founded, where his magnificent monument of brass, gilt, (engraven in Sandford, p. 413.) remains entire to this day.

An imperfect account of his funeral is printed in the Archæologia, vol. I. p. 348.

John Grene,

EDWARD IV. soon after his coronation, proposed a marriage with a daughter of Lewis duke of Savoy, sister to the Queen of France, for which purpose the earl of Warwick was sent to France. In the mean time, the King hunting in Wickfield forest, and coming to the manor of Grafton, in Northamptonshire, fell passionately in love with Elizabeth, widow of Sir John Grey of Groby, and daughter of Sir Richard Woodvile, Knt. afterwards created Earl Rivers, by Jaquetta, relict of John Duke of Bedford, and daughter of Peter of Luxemburg, Earl of St. Paul. He was married to her at the above manor, May 1, 1464; and on the 26th of May, in the year following, she was solemnly crowned at Westminster. She was his wife near 19 years; during which her father and fourth brother were beheaded in his cause, by the Northamptonshire men, 1468, and herself forced to take sanctuary at Westminster, 1470, where her eldest son Edward was born. After her husband's death, her elder brother, Anthony *, and her son by her first husband,

* The following abstract of his will is from Dugd. Bar. II. p. 233. made 23 June, 1483. in Sherif Hutton castle, Yorkshire, not long before his execution: "He bequeathed his heart to be carried to our Lady of Pue, adjoining to St. Stephen's College, Westminster, there to be buried, by the advice of the dean and his brethren; and in case he should die south of Trent to be also buried before our Lady of Pue aforesaid: appointing that all the lands which were his father's should remain to his right heirs, with his cup of gold of Columbine; and that such lands as were the Lady Scales, his first wife, should come to his brother, Sir Edward Wydvill, and to his heirs male, and for lack of such heirs male unto the right heirs of his father; but he to whom it should so come, before he took possession thereof, being beheaded at Pontefract by Richard, she took refuge a second time at Westminster, which she quitted not till after Richard III's death. Henry VII. having seized on all her possessions, she retired to Bermondsey abbey, where she soon after died, and was buried near her husband Edward. She obtained his licence, in the 6th year of his reign, to complete the foundation of Queen's College, Cambridge, begun by Henry VI's Queen. Sandford, p. 407.

By her first husband, who was slain in the battle of St. Alban's, 39 Hen. VI. she had issue, 1. Sir Thomas Grey, created by Edward IV. in the eleventh year of his reign, earl of Huntingdon, and four years after marquis of Dorset. He fled from Richard III's tyranny to the Duke of Richmond, and died 17 Hen. VII. 2. Richard, beheaded as above^b.

By the King she was mother of, 1. Edward, born 1470, proclaimed King, and murdered with his brother. 2. Richard duke of York, born 1474, married to Anne only daughter of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk. 3. George, Duke of Bedford, died an infant. 4. Elizabeth, born 1466, married to Henry VII. 5. Cecily, married 1st, to John Lord Viscount Welles, son of Margaret Beauchamp, to deduct 500 marks, to be employed for the souls of the said Lady Scales, and Thomas her brother, and the souls of all the Scale's blood, in helping and refreshing hospitals, and other deeds charitable. Also to find a priest one year at our Lady of Pue, to pray for the souls of those brothers and all Christian souls. Likewise to find another priest to sing at the chapel of the Rodes in Greenwich, to pray for his own soul, and all Christian souls. Farther directing, that all his apparell for his body and horse-harnets should be sold, and with the money thereof shirts and smocks for poor folk to be bought.

dutchess of Somerset, (mother of Margaret Beaufort, countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII.) by her second husband Lionel Lord Welles; and he dying 1498, leaving by her one daughter, Anne ^c, she was married, 2dly, to Kyme of Lincolnshire, and buried at Quarrera, in the Isle of Wight. 6. Anne, married to Thomas Howard third Duke of Norfolk, and buried at Framlingham, having had one son, who died young, and was buried, at Lambeth ^d. 7. Bridget, born at Eltham, 1480, became a nun at Dartford, where she died about 1517 ^e. 8. Mary, died at Greenwich, 1482, buried at Windsor. 9. Margaret, born 1472, died the same year, buried at Westminster, on the north side of the Confessor, where a small altar tomb remains, with part of the epitaph given by Sandford. 10. Catherine, married to William Courtney earl of Devon, died and was buried at Tiverton, where she has a monument, with her effigies, on the side of the altar ^f. Sandford, p 415—420.

THE unfortunate EDWARD V. was barely proclaimed King when he was murdered by his usurping uncle RICHARD III *. who, after a turbulent reign of two years and two months, came to a deserved end in Bosworth field.

The will of HENRY VII. having been printed at length, with a judicious preface and appendix, by Thomas Astle, Esq. F. R. and A. S. S. 1775, 4to. it would be unnecessary to reprint it here. We shall therefore close the present series with the will of Margaret Countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII.

* It is not generally known that, in July 1483, King Richard III. with his Queen and their attendants, were received and entertained at Oxford, by Wainfleet, the founder of Magdalen College, as appears from the register books of that college. See Wood's Historia & Antiquitates Oxon. I. P. 233.

MARGARATE COUNTESS OF RICHMOND.

IN the name of ALMIGHTY GOD, Amen. We Margarete Countes of Richmond and Derby, Moder to the most excellent Prince King Henry the VIIth, by the g'ce of GOD King of Englund and of Fraunce, and Lorde of Irlande, our most dere Son, have called to our remembrance the unstabilnesse of this transitory worlde, and that ev'ry creatur here lyving is mortall, and the tyme and place of deth to ev'y creatur uncerteyn. * Charles Somerset Lord Herbert of Gower and Chepstow, natural son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, son of Edmund Duke of Somerset, uncle to the testatrix. From his relationship to Henry VII. and his many excellent qualities, he was much in that Prince's favour, and was chamberlain of his household: having married Elizabeth daughter and heir of William Herbert, Earl of Huntingdon, he became, in her right, Lord Herbert, and was created Earl of Worcester. He died April 15, 1526, and lies buried with his said Countess in a chapel which he erected in the royal chapel at Windsor, where a fine monument remains over them. From him descends his Grace Henry Somerset now duke of Beaufort, 1780.

† Sir Thomas Lovell, Knt. of the Garter, was an active man in Henry VII's reign. When only an Esquire he was, in 1485, made Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Esquire of the King's body, knighted at the battle of Stoke, and Knight of the Garter. In 1502 Treasurer of the Household, and President of the Council, and one of Henry VII's Executors, Constable of the Tower, Surveyor of the Court of Wards, Steward and Marshall of the Household to Henry VIII. He built the gate-house at Lincoln's-Inn, and East Harling-hall, Norfolk, refounded Haliwell Nunnery, Shoreditch, where he was buried 1528. dying at his house called Elsyngs, at Enfield. Blomf. Norf. Be it remembred, That it was also the last will of the saide Princeffe to dissolve th'ospitall of Seynt Joh'nis in Cambrigge^a, and to alter and to founde therof a college of feculer perfoncs ; that is to say, a maister and fifty scolors, with divers fervants ; and newe to bialde the said college, and sufficiently to endowe the same, with londs and tenements, astir the maner and forme of other colleges in Cambridge ; and to furnyſhe the same, as well in the chapell, library, pantre, and kechen, with books and all other things necessary for the same. And to the performans whereof the saide Princeffe willed, among other things, that hir excutors shuld take the yllues, revenues, and profitts of hir londs and tenements put in feoffament in the counties of Devonshire, Somersettshire, and North-

Tanner. Not. Mon. p. 43. The Countess had been solicted by some men of character in the other university to place her remaining charities upon Oxford, at St. Frideswide's ; but Bp. Fisher, by more powerful arguments, and particularly by pointing out the melancholy state and dissolute lives of the brethren of Old St. John's House, turned her thoughts back again to Cambridge. Their prodigality and excesses had occasioned them to mortgage all their lands and settled estates beyond their worth, and at last the house itself was abandoned. The best thing that could be done was to dissolve it, and ingraft a college on the old stock. The consent of the bishop of Ely, as reputed founder and diocesan, was easily obtained of James Stanley, and the King's licence as easily. But before this could be done in due and legal form, the King died ; and before much more could be done to the purpose, the foundress likewise died ; and had she not lodged this trust in faithful hands, this great and good design had died with her. MARGARET, only daughter of John Beaufort duke of Somersset (grandson of John of Gaunt) by Margaret daughter of John Beauchamp of Bletfœ, was married to Edmund de Hadham, second son of Owen Tudor the second husband of Catherine Queen of Henry V. created 31 Henry VI. earl of Richmond, with precedence before all other earls. He died 35 Henry VI. 1456. and was buried in the middle of the choir of St. David's cathedral, under an altar tomb yet remaining, with an inscription, styling him, "Father and Brother to Kings." His widow married Henry a younger son of Humphrey Stafford duke of Buckingham, slain at the battle of Northampton, 38 Henry VI. whose will bears date 1481, 21 Edward IV. * She took to her third husband Thomas Lord Stanley, who narrowly escaping death from a blow of a halberd at the arrest of Lord Hastings, joined the Countess's son at the battle of Bosworth, and had the honour of placing the usurper's crown on his head, and was the same year created

* He bequeathed his body to be buried in the college of Pleshy, in Essex, and gave £. 160. to buy twelve marks of livelode by the year, to be amortized for the finding an honest fitting priest to sing for his soul, in the said college of Pleshe, for evermore. And to his son-in-law the Earl of Richmond a trappur of four new horse-harnes of velvet. To his brother John Earl of Wiltshire his bay courser; and to Reynold Bray †, his receiver-general, his grizzled horse. Of which testament he appointed Margaret Countess of Richmond his wife his Executrix. Dugd. Bar. I. 167.

† This trusty servant of the Countess of Richmond was one instrument in bringing about the Revolution in favour of her son, being sent by the Duke of Buckingham and Morton Bishop of Ely to concert measures with her and Edward IV's dowager. Dugd. Bar. II. 239. ex Polyd. Verg. p. 553.

Earl of Derby, which title has been held to this day by his lineal descendants, of whom our histories recite a glorious series.

She had no children by her two last husbands, and only one son by her first.

Having lived to see the coronation of her grandson Henry VIII. she departed this life just thirteen months after the date of her testament, June 29, 1509, and is buried, according to her appointment, in the South side of the chapel of Our Lady at Westminster, begun to be built by her son, and commonly called Henry VIIIth's chapel. Her effigies of copper gilt, habited in an ermine mantle, with a coronet on her head, and a hind at her feet, lies on a tomb of black marble, at whose head are her arms impaled by those of the Earl of Richmond, as at the feet by those of the Earl of Derby. On the South side Henry VII. impaling Elizabeth of York, Henry V. impaling Catherine of France, and Arthur Prince of Wales. On the North side Henry VIII. impaling Catherine of Arragon; John Duke of Somerset, impaling Margaret Holland, her grandfather and grandmother. Her simple epitaph, reciting her charities, was drawn up by Erasmus, who received twenty shillings for it. See it, and the monument, in Sandford, 328. in Dart I. 148. and in Baker's Preface to Fisher's Funeral Sermon, where is also an engraving of the arms used in her seal, and now borne by the colleges of Christ and St. John in Cambridge; And see Dugd. Bar. II. 237, 238.

THE several great benefactions of this good lady for the promotion of learning, which had been gradually emerging in this kingdom during the distractions of the wars between the houses of York and Lancafter, render it necessary to give a more particular account of her foundations than could be divided into notes.

The Countess had letters patents, 12 Henry VII. to purchase lands of the yearly value of £. 10. to found and endow at Winborn a perpetual chantry of one priest, in honour of the blessed Jesus, the Annuntiation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and for the health of her soul, and the souls of her parents. But dying before it was endowed, her executors obtained letters patents, 1 Henry VIII. ratifying the former, and empowering them to purchase lands to the value of £. 6. per annum, over and above the others, by indenture, tripartite, 2 Henry VIII. between them, the Dean and Chapter of Wimborn, and the sacrist, or keeper of Brembre's chantry there. The executors founded a chantry at the altar on the South side of the tomb of John duke of Somersset, and Margaret his wife, father and mother of the testatrix, and appointed Richard Hodgekynnes, B. A. to be first chaplain, continually resident in the college of Wimborn, in a house appointed by the dean and chapter there to teach grammar to all comers as in Eton and Westminster schools, without any other perquisites than were appointed by the executors; and to celebrate daily mass at the said altar, for the souls of the foundress, King Henry VII. her parents and ancestors; the collects and other ceremonies are particularly prescribed. He was to keep her anniversary July 9, and after it to distribute twenty shillings, as follows; to the sacrist of the college if present at her mass sixteen pence, to every chaplain devoutly singing eight pence, to every secondary and parish clerk four pence, to the sacrist for five wax candles to be burnt about the bier, and two on the altar, and for bell ropes, sixteen pence; to the ringers eight pence; the residue among the poor of the parish, at one penny or twopence each. His stipend was ten pound per annum, and his door-keeper's forty-shillings, and he was to give an account of his expences each Michaelmas, to the sacrist, and one of the senior chaplains of Brembre's chantry; and the surplus money was to be kept in a chest under three keys, one in the hands of the Dean or his sacrist, another in those of the senior chaplain, and the third in those of the chaplain of this chantry; or to be taken out as wanted. In 1511 Richard Hodgekyns was chantry priest, and received six pounds per annum. At the dissolution this chauntry fell with the college of Winborn and all its revenues into the King's hands; part was leased out, and part continued as a precarious maintenance to the ministers of the church, till 5 Eliz. certain of the parishioners, by means of Lord Montjoy, obtained the Queen's letters patents to found the free grammar-school now subsisting at Winborn, in which the munificence of the pious testatrix is absorbed; and instead of one priest a schoolmaster is maintained by an income of £. 34. per annum, and an usher at £. 25. per annum. Hutchins's Dorset, II. 81. 83.

The Cambridge public lecture in divinity she instituted in the 13th year of her son's reign, on the feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin, and by her original foundation appointed John Fisher, S. T. P. her first reader, who was succeeded by Dr. Cosin, Master of Benet, and he by William Burgoyne, afterwards Master of Peter-house; and he by Erasmus. She likewise gave rules and statutes for the choice of her reader, and for the discharge and performance of the duties of his place, and endowed her lecture with 20 marks per annum, payable by the abbot and convent of Westminster. The same day and year she instituted the like reader at Oxford, with allowance of the same salary, and almost under the same rules with that at Cambridge, and nominated one John Roper, S. T. P. her first reader.

In the 20th year of the same reign she founded a perpetual public preacher at Cambridge, with a stipend of £. 10. per annum, payable by the abbot and convent of Westminster, whose duty was to preach at least six sermons every year at several churches specified in the foundation in the dioceses of London, Ely, and Lincoln; and one John Fawn, S. T. P. is appointed her first preacher, by the original foundation.

This foundation of a public preacher is peculiar to Cambridge, for Mr. Wood's suspicion of the like at Oxford has no foundation.

The foundation of Christ's college was undertaken by the advice and persuasion of Bp. Fisher; who, by her statutes, was appointed visitor for life after the foundress. The foundation has been placed in the year 1505, but the statutes were not given, nor the foundation perfected, till the year following. The original obligation of John Syclyng, last master of God's house, and first master of Christ's college, for observing the foundress's statutes, bears date Sept. 5, 22 Henry VII. from which day and year, I suppose, and not sooner, the government and statutes of that college took place and begun to be in force. And because the bishops of Ely had yet kept up some claim or shew of power, a grant was obtained from James [Stanley] bishop of Ely, son in law to the foundress, 1506, whereby he gave leave to the Master, Fellows, and Scholars, to celebrate divine offices in their college chapel, which had been already consecrated; and by another grant of the same date, at the instance of the foundress, he exempted the college from episcopal and ordinary visitations for himself and successors for ever. The endowments of the college are all specified in the foundress's will, and though it appears from thence that she herself was very liberal, having bestowed good lands and manors of her own, yet the abbey of Croyke given her by Henry VII. and God's House, which which was of the foundation of Henry VI. did go a good way, and pretty deep, in the foundation.

In regard to the foundation of St. John's College, she did indeed leave a will and lands in feoffment for the performance thereof, and these were very sufficient, had they been secured against the next heir the King her grandson; and though her will (as far as appears) was very good, and duly attested, yet that part of it which concerned her foundation of a new college, having been done by way of codicil, before it could be sealed, the good lady departed this life, and left some ground for cavil. This might have been borne with had they been sure of the old house, but that was yet standing undissolved, so that all that had been done towards it was to begin anew, with less power, and under greater disadvantages. King Henry VII. was now wanting; the King reigning, as he had not the same ties of duty and affection, so he was under no obligation to make good his father's promises; and having an eye upon the estate, he had no very strong inclination to favor a design that must swallow up a part of his inheritance. The bishop of Ely, who was easy and complying enough whilst the foundress was living, she being gone, began to shew his nature, and was full of difficulties, and withheld his consent for half a year.

His first business ought to have been to have visited and reformed the house, and to have prevented those enormities that occasioned its dissolution; but having rather countenanced their looseness, by his ill example, it is no wonder if he had some tenderness and feeling of the infirmities of his brethren, or was unwilling to consent to a thing that so plainly reproached him with his own great neglect and worse example.

Great application was to be made both at court and at Ely; the affair was likewise to be solicited at Rome, and where Julius II. being then pope, nothing was to be done without address and management, and all the other requisites to expedite such an affair. The expences of the bulls are put down upon the executor's accounts (signed and allowed by Polydore Vergil), which are very high for a thing so much in course and of no greater consequence than the dissolving an old ruinous house, that might have been done without asking the pope's leave, had it been thought expedient; and yet, when the bull came, it was found defective, and was to be renewed at a new trouble and expence. The latter indeed was not lost; for when the decretory bull was sent it struck the old house at one blow, without consent either of the King or of the bishop of Ely.

The King's licence was granted Aug. 7. ann. reg. primo. It sets forth the desolate state and condition of the house, though not in so dismal a manner; gives leave to the executors, upon its suppression, to convert it into a college unius magistri, ac sociorum, et scholarium ad numerum 50 vel circa, in scientiis liberalibus, jure civili & canonica, et theologia studentium, to be stiled St. John's College; to unite, incorporate, and annex, all the lands of the old house to the college so erected; and further grants leave to the college when erected to hold £. 50. per annum over and above the lands of the house, the statute of mortmain notwithstanding.

This licence was granted at the request of the foundress (though then deceased) as well as of her executors; for there is an old draught or original of the King's licence, signed Henry, but not sealed, whereto is prefixed the petition of his humble graunt dame, in a form there put down: so it seems, her petition was either preferred, or left to be preferred, after her death; and the King's licence under seal, refers to her petition.

The bishop of Ely's first grant is dated March 7, 1509. after the King's licence, and before the papal bull came, whereby he first makes conditions for himself and successors, by reserving to himself a power of naming three persons during his life, and to his successors a power of naming one, to be elected fellows of the college, si habiles et idonei sint, a clog that yet remains upon the society; and then grants, that the college, when erected, shall enjoy the jewels, goods, &c. belonging to the house, and obliges himself, that, the papal bulls first had, he would give leave and allow the house to be incorporated to the college. And he empowered Richard Wiot, S. T. P. Master of Christ's college, John Fotehede B. D. and William Thornborough, to take a full and perfect inventory of all the jewels, muniments, and other moveables of the house, and to have them in safe custody till the college should be erected.

When the pope's bulls came, the bishop of Ely passed another grant, dated Dec. 31. ann. reg. secundo, whereby he conveyed over to the executors all the scite and mansion, and all the houses, churches, chapels, and edifices, belonging to the house, together with all manors, lands, rents, tenements, and other possessions appertaining thereunto, and all his right as founder in the same; which house being suppressed, dissolv'd, and extinguished, by apostolical authority, by the King's licence, and by his consent, devolving to him as founder, being of the foundation of him and his predecessors, he grants to them, to the end and intention, that they might change, found, create, and erect it into a college of secular students, to endure for ever; ordinary jurisdiction always reserved to him and his successors. And he appointed and constituted Richard Henrison, clerk, and others, his proctors or attorneys, to enter and take seisin and possession of the house; and being seized, to deliver full, plenary, and peaceable possession thereof to the founders's executors.

By virtue of this grant, on the 20th of January, the same year full and peaceable possession of the house, &c. was delivered by Richard Henrison, the bishop's commissary to Henry Hornby S. T. P. one of the executors, in the name and stead of the rest; in the presence of William Woderove S. T. P. master of Clare-hall, and deputy vice-vice-chancellor, William Burgoign S. T. P. John Fotehede S. T. B. master of Michael-house, Oliver Scalis public notary, and many other students and burgeffes.

And so the old house, after much sollicitation and long delay, after a tedious process at Rome, at court, and at Ely, under an imperious pope, a forbidding prince, and a mercenary prelate, with great application and industry, and at no less expence, was at last dissolved and utterly extinguished, on the 20th day of January, A. D. 1510. and fell a lasting monument to all future ages, and to all charitable and religious foundations, not to neglect the rules or abuse the institutions of their founders, lest they fall under the same fate.

Though all this was transacted in the name of the executors, it ought never to be forgot, that the bishop of Rochester was the sole or principal agent.

The house being thus dissolved, the next thing the executors were to think of, was to set about their new foundation; which they were now empowered to do by a full authority. Somewhat they were now sure of, and we have a college in view, but as yet a very poor one: for the revenues of the old house were small, according to an authentic account amounting only to £. 80. 1s. 10d. qb. per ann. And it is pretty plain, from the King's licence of mortmain, he did not intend the foundation should be over large, it being thereby limited to £. 50 per annum, besides the revenues of the old house.

It is true, the foundress had done her part, having left the issues, profits, and revenues, of her estate and lands, to the value of £. 400. and upwards, to that purpose, and for the uses of her will; but surely the King, when he granted such a mortmain, did not intend the executors should enjoy them long. However, being unwilling to understand his meaning, or being willing to push things as far as they would go, or presaging already the future growth of the college, though from unhopeful beginnings, they went on with good assurance; and having cleared the debts of the old house, according to the direction of the foundress in her will, as well as the rubbish of the old buildings, which in great part were very ruinous, they proceeded to the foundation, both of the fabric and body politic of the college.

The charter of foundation was given April 9, 1511, in the name and by the authority of all the executors.

In all this charter, which is a very long one, there is no mention made of the large revenues left by the foundress, for the uses of her will; but the King's licence of mortmain is there recited, whereby the college is limited to £. 50. per annum besides the lands and revenues of the house. About the same time the fabric of the house was undertaken, which was made equal to the design.

The expence of the whole building amounted in all (after some deductions for other uses) to betwixt four and five thousand pounds, a round sum in that age! for so much.

much was paid by the executors towards the building to Robert Shorton master of the college, and so much was paid by him to Oliver Scalis, clerk of the works, at several payments, as appears by their several accounts.

All this while the executors had to do with a greater man, the King, as heir at law to the foundress's estate. All due care had been taken to secure their interest therein, by proving her will, both in the Prerogative Court and in the Court of Chancery, by advice of the judges, wherein archbishop Warham was very useful and favourable, both as Archbishop and Chancellor of England; who, after a long, tedious, and expensive hearing, witnesses examined, the King's council heard, and judges consulted (all which was necessary to guard him against the King) at last approved and allowed the will as good. Upon this ground the profits of her lands were received for some years, first by Bishop Fisher, and afterwards by Dr. Hornby; but this was not to continue long; for what by the clamours of the Countess's officers and servants, who, because they could not have all themselves, were willing to give all to the King; what by the advice of some potent courtiers, of which number Wolsey is said to be one; and what by the fresh suit of the King's auditors and council, who are usually ready to second the courtiers in such designs, the executors were so hard pressed, and so straitly handled, that they were forced to let go the lands, notwithstanding all the claim they had to them.

The lands being gone, they were to look out and sue for a compensation, otherwise all was at a stand. Somewhat of that kind was easily obtained; but that at first granted, as it was small in itself, so it was soon defeated by unexpected accidents, and an untimely death. Somewhat more durable was to be had, and there being an old decayed Maison Dieu or hospital at Ospring in Kent worth having, this falling under the Bishop of Rochester's view, was quickly thought of, and being by devolution in the King, by the Bishop's application at court, with the mediation of the Queen, Wolfey, and other courtiers, it was at last obtained.

This, with the lands of the old house, together with the foundress's estate at Fordham, which was charged with debts by her will, with some other little things purchased with her monies, was the original foundation upon which the college was first opened; and whoever dreams of vast revenues, or larger endowments, will be mightily mistaken. Her lands put in feoffment for the performance of her will, lay in the counties of Devon, Somerset, and Northampton; and though I should be very glad to meet with lands of the foundation in any of these three counties, yet I despair much of such a discovery. But whoever now enjoys the manors of Maxey and Torpell, in the county of Northampton, or the manors of Martock, Currey-Ryvell, Kynsbury, and Queen-Camel, with the hundreds of Bulston, Abdike, and Horethorne, in the county of Somerfet ; or the manor of Sandford Peverell, with the hundred of Alberton, in the county of Devon ; though they may have a very good title to them, which I will not question, yet whenever they shall be piously and charitably disposed, they cannot bestow them more equitably than by leaving them to St. John's college, Cambridge.
